

Liberty comes home to Manchester [1]

Written by Jonathan Basnett [2] | Wednesday 16 October 2013

For those not living in or around the London area it can be difficult to attend the top events on the libertarian calendar. It makes sense for the capital to be our focus, but it doesn't have to be to the detriment of elsewhere.

The Liberty League is currently organising its first one-day regional conference [3]. It takes the best quality speakers to create a day-long event much larger than the average libertarian society social.

Our first one will be held in Manchester on Saturday, the 26th of October. This city was a natural choice given its liberal heritage and the emergence of a strong libertarian society in the last few years. The conference is open to all not just students and we're sure that the bargain ticket price of £4 and brilliant speaker list will be a big attraction.

Make sure to put the date in your diary as we have:

Jamie Whyte on 'Tax Evasion and Democratic Predation?'

John Meadowcroft on 'Prostitution: for and against'

Kevin Dowd on 'Private Banking?'

Steve Davies and Tim Evans: A panel discussion on the case for private healthcare

If that isn't enough we have a room with a buffet dinner included in the ticket cost and a final speech from the ASI's very own Sam Bowman. Tickets are available from UKLibertyLeague.org [4].

It's important to keep reaching out to those on our periphery. Part of doing this is making libertarian events as accessible as possible to as many as possible, and Liberty League is committed to helping to do so. These one-day events are a great way to kick-start libertarian groups in towns or cities and refresh those that are not as active. We need a strong broad and inclusive movement right across the UK, and the more chances people have to network and interact the better.
